THE ENQUIRER.

LITCHFIELD, APRIL 7, 1836.

UP SALT RIVER .- The election has passed-and Old Litchfield has at length surrendered herself into the arms of her enemy. Victory has perched upon the banner of Patent Democracy. The current of corruption has for several years been constantly flowing in upon us, until at last it has swept over us. Well-we must bear it with as good a grace as possible-for we can't this time help it. The fact is now demonstrated (which we did not before believe) that this town can master 200 voters. Sixty or seventy more votes have been given this spring than for 20 or 30 years-and much the largest that was ever given.

The making of new freemen occupied the time of the meeting until near one o'clock. There were then four ballotings for first Representative before a choice was effected-it was then near six o'clock. A falling off of upwards of 60 of the whigs immediately took place; and they soon scattered like sheep before the wolf. We were very sorry to see it-manifesting a spirit of timidity which we hope never again to witness. 'Tis true, that night was approaching, the travelling excessively bad, and many had to go eight or nine miles to their homes-nevertheless, we thought they might continue at the polls a little longer. Only see what follows. A whig vote of 395 reduced in a few hours to only 52! 'Twas humiliating to those who remained-disgraceful to most of those who left.

The following is the state of the vote in this town on Monday last. The Whigs, notwithstanding they were defeated, polled more votes than they did last spring.

HARTFORD, Monday evening, April 4. "Our election has closed in this City, very successfully to our party, although the neighboring towns have gone against us. We elected our first representative by 110 majority, and our second by 210. We gave our Senator, William W. Ellsworth, 283 majority!-and all the State Officers over 200. Wethersfield is against us by 7 majority. Southington 55 against us, and Berlin over 100. But we have elected our Senator in this District.

Middletown gave over 200 majority against us-so far as we have returns we have no hopes of the State. I shall leave the letter open for the additional news of the morning.

Tuesday Morning-The returns are not favorable, come in bad.

The Season .- For a few days past the balmy air from the south and west has tended very much to enliven our feelings and melt away the snow. A large quantity of this necessary winter article still however remains upon the ground. On Monday very many of our freemen came to town meeting in sleighs from the different parts of the town. It was to us a singular sight-for we do not recollect to have ever before witneesed it.

The first snow fell here on the night of the 22d of November-and the earth has been sufficiently covered ever since (except for the last three or four days) to make good sleighing-a period of very near four months and half-or 136 days. What do our southern friends say to such a winter as this? The winter of 1835-6 will no doubt be long remembered as THE HARD WINTER.

The Public Lands .- We would beg leave to call the attention of our readers to a letter from Washington on our preceeding page respecting the public lands. It was intended for publication a week or two ago, but crowded out by more local political matter .-Now that the excitement of the election is over, and that the public mind will soon have had time to cool. we hope every reader of a public newspaper-every person who has the honor and welfare of his country at heart-every one who feels for the good of his native state-will take the pains to inform himself upon this subject. Depend upon it, that it is not the demagogue who makes the loudest professions of regard for the dear people, that will do the most disinterested good for them. Look out that selfishness be not at the bottom of all their high-sounding professions .-Again, we say, that we trust every reader will at least inform himself upon the subject.

In it proper to vote at an Elector's meeting by proxy? It is said that a certain deputy sheriff in the south part of this county was employed as the agent of others to carry the votes to the ballot box. X.

WASHINGTON, March 24.

My letter of last evening left me at Masonic Hall, surrounded with 30 chiefs belonging to the Chippewa and Ottawa tribes, assembled for the purpose of receiving justice at the hands of the American commissioners; or, to use the language of the Ottawa chief -'justice at the hands of their American Father.'-Fancy then again before you, the scene I hastily drew in my last evening's letter: the table-the maps of the disputed boundary-the interpreters, one of them a half breed, American and Ottowa, and the other an American-the full blood Indian Catholic Priest, born in America, christened in America, and educated at Rome, in all the doctrines of the Romish church. Do not forget the mother and her children.

The Ottawa chiefs were placed in front of the commissioners, the interpreters and the Chippewas opposite the latter, and, by the way, being much better clothed, and much more intelligent than their Ottowa brethren. Thus situated, one of the Ottowa chiefs, the eldest of all present, rose from the front seat, giving his hand in token of friendship to the commissioner. This man, who was more than six feet high, with his head, the largest I ever saw before, shaved from the tip of the forehead to the crown, presented a most savage appearance. His age to appearance, was more than 60 years; his hair and beard were white, and his costume wholly of an Indian character. From the appearance of this chief, as well as those around him. any one would have supposed the Ottawas a far more destitute, degraded, and neglected race than the Chipnewas, who were even dressed, (one of them in particular) more buckish than a New-York beau. The old man said but a few words, and those in his native tongue, and having reference simply to the location of the Chippewa lands. His conclusion, however, was noble, worthy of a chief and a father. "We ask our father," said he, naming the President of the U. States, " that he would reserve some lands for us and for our posterity." The surrounding chiefs nodded

The name of this chief who had just closed was Apoprsigenin. He was a noble looking fellow, dressed in full Indian costume, with his face painted, and his hair queerly arranged. His right hand was given to both of the commissioners, when in an impressive and eloquent strain of oratory he begun. I gathered a few words from the interpreter, which were as follows: "Listen to me, O Fathers. The Great Spirit sees us: He knows your thoughts and my thoughts: His eye is ever upon us," (pointing to the heavens.) "He gives us all that we have, and all that we want. He knows of all our actions." Then casting his eyes around the hall-" The white man," said he, "loves his wife," (pointing to the ladies,) " and the red man Hartford district, and that the two other districts in Hartford connut are probably Jackson. New-Haven district whig, and probably the two others Jackson.—

The white man loves his children," (pointing to a group of scholars, who had just before entered the Hiddetown district also Jackson. No further returns.

With this brief, staquent exordium, Megfeinni continued a speech of not more than 10 minutes' length. Of this chief, I could well exclaim, in the language of party) 240. The loco-focos are really a smaller mino- another, once applied to the great Red Jacket, who is represented as personifying eloquence itself:

" ____ Her spell is thine that reaches The heart, and makes the wisest head its sport. And there's one rare virtue in thy speeches, The secret of their mastery—they are short."

So short that not in length only, but in thought and action, they afforded an admirable commentary upon the thoughtless, and prolig speeches of members of Congress. The business before the commissioners, was the purchasing of more lands from the Indians who reside in Michigan. The Indian Chiefs wished to have several large tracts reserved to them and their posterity, for whom, with their wives, they manifested the most tender affections. In the Council there were two interested parties, opposed to each in regard to the disposition and reservation of their Michigan lands. Thus situated-and thus disagreeing, the two parties referred their difficulties to their American Father, renewing in all their speeches, and all their actions and feelings, the warmest pledges of their hearts, that they are still the friend and lover of the white man .- N. Y. Adv.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 29, 1836. The House of Representatives have been engaged to day about seven hours on the North Carolina Contested Election. For details I refer to your reporter. I shall notice only two or three of the strong points in the case, as they occurred to-day.

Mr. Newland, the gentleman claiming the seat, was entitled to the floor. He commented on the testimony, &cc. for more than an hour. As soon as he took his seat the previous question was moved. This was considered by the minority a violation of the implied pledge made on Sunday morning, that this day should be devoted to the subject; whereupon they commenced a systematic opposition to the demand for the previous question. This opposition was carried on, by means of various motions, such as to adjourn, to lay though better than last year. Fairfield county has the subject on the table, to have a call of the house, &c. on each of which motions the yeas and nays were called. The scene was one of great confusion, and much embarrasment to the Speaker, who conducted himself with calmness, propriety and fairness. After contest of about four hours, and which the minority possessed the power of continuing for as many months, if they had so chosen, they offered a resolution proposing, by way of compromise, that the question should be immediately taken, without debate, on the motion to receive the new testimony which Mr. Graham had in his possession; and if the testimony was rejected, then that the main question as to the rights of the parties, should, in like manner, be taken without debate. To this the majority would not listen. They had not the firmness to reject the testimony, at that moment within the reach of the house, nor the liberality to adopt it. They could not bring up their troops, with all their discipline, to this destrucive charge. If brought to the voie, they knew that this testimony would be admitted; and if admitted, Mr. Graham would have been sustained in his seat by a majority of more than fifty. Their salvation consisted in urging the previous question, by means of which all amendments were cut off, and the vote as to the new testimony evaded. At length, about half past six o'clock, the minority consented to come to the vote, and the previous question

> There were two resolutions on which the house was now called to vote : First-That Mr. Graham is not entitled to a seat on the floor. This was carried in the affirmative—ayes I14, noes 87.

> Second. That Mr. Newland is entitled to a seat on the floor. This was lost-ayes 99, noes 100. So the House have decided that neither of them is > duly elected, and the subject is again referred to the

No language can describe or depict the chagrin disappointment, mortification and dismay, which spread through the ranks of what was, but a few minutes previous, an overbearing, oppressive, and haughty majority. But it would be far more difficult to speak of the gallant and triumphant minority, in terms sufficiently laudatory. They have indeed defended he rights of the people, and the sacredness of the ballot-box, with a zeal, and perseverence and a bravery, which nothing but the justice of their cause could have inspired. Great praise is due to the honorable men, who, scorning the trammels of party, refused to record their votes in favor of Mr. Newland, as being duly elected a member of the House. This second defeat tends to prove that the ranks of the majority on great and vital questions, can no longer be kept unbroken by means of political intolerance and proscription. The Albany Regency is losing its controlling power over the House of Representatives; and power over the mouse of Representatives; and if they continue to boast at Albany that they have a sub-servient majority at Washington, he pleased to say to them. Geutlemen, you are mistaken! "The sceptie has departed from Judah."—Ib.

From the New-Orleans True American, March 16. Glorious News!! The Texians Triumphant!-Matagorda, we learn that Gen. The news is confirmed by an arrival from Managorda. The remainder of the Mexicans fled in disorder over the Prairies." disorder over the Prairies."

The Pennsylvania House of Representatives have nesed a resolution by a vote 38 to 24, ordering Hen-W. Conrad to be brought to the bar on the 26th of the month, and there publicly reprimanded by the Speaker, for his silly attempt to make poor old Colonel Krebs believe that he was bribed to vote for the charter of the United States Bank. Of course it will be borne in mind that this same Contand is a full blooded Van Buren man, and actually doing what little he could at the time, to defeat the charter!

WE feel it a duty we owe the public to take some notice of the advertisement (which appeared in the San) of Caleb P. Cone, the late Teacher of the District School in this place, since he has seen fit to open the door by his repeated wanton attacks upon some of its members. We feel at liberty, and think it also a duty, to show the public that he is a man that ought not to be countenanced as a School Teacher .-It is a well known fact that his conduct in school in extremely reprehensible, immoral, and debasing in its tendency, which destroys the main qualification to impart what should be the aim of every Teacher—Virtuous Knowledge. Facts in proof of the above statement might be disclosed, which are not fit to meet the public eye, but can be substantiated beyond a doubt a and we have testimony in point from several Districts in this State, as well as a neighboring State, to confirm the facts. We would have chosen for his benefit to have let it pass in silence, but since he has had the impudence to repeat his attack, we think the public demand this notice, that they may guard against the imposition of the self-exalted gentleman who claims to have—" GREY SO SIGELY." to have-" GREW SO RICELY."
